Mark your calendars for Sunday June 5th as a supersized Shopwalk arrives in the Historic Core. The first-Sunday-of-the-month block party is teaming up with Urban Air Market for a sustainable pop-up emporium on 5th Street between Spring and Main, adjacent to the regular Sunday Farmers Market. The marketplace will showcase sustainable artisan designs and connect independent artists and designers to their local economy. Combine this with the inaugural Expo Line bar crawl, The Regent's Rock and Roll Flea Market, Grand Central Market's 2nd Bread Festival and we've got a proper Sunday Funday.

Beginning June 3rd, LA's iconic Grand Central Market starts a new tradition with Summer Nights. The series will keep the Market open until 10pm nightly, featuring a tantalizing mix of evening food and drink, live music, outdoor movies and other entertainment. The nightly programming represents the next step in Broadway's activation as more restaurants, bars, offices, and apartments continue to pop up to the South. Check out the Market's full summer programming lineup here and look forward to brighter Broadway nights.

Long awaited Australian fashion brand BNKR adds to 9th and Broadway's retail hub.

After dozens of submissions, thousands of votes, and four finalists, Pershing Square Renew and Councilmember Jose Huizar announced that French landscape architecture firm Agence Ter has been chosen for the Pershing Square redesign. The plan will extend grassy areas to the sidewalk by bringing the raised park back down to ground level and ripping away the walls that separate it from the adjacent streets. The Agence Ter team aims to turn Pershing Square into an inviting public commons by removing some of the car-based planning strategies that have shaped the space and replacing them with shade, nature, and multipurpose spaces that welcome the community into the park.

The Santa Monica Museum of Art, long known as SMMoA, has confirmed that it will be moving Downtown. The newly renamed Institute of Contemporary Art, Los Angeles (ICA LA) will take over a 12,700-square-foot former garment manufacturing facility in the Arts District. This change reflects the emergence of Downtown Los Angeles as a diverse artistic and cultural epicenter. "It's a much more activated and succinct mission," executive director Elsa Longhauser said. "It's a little more socially engaged. It's about art and social action. The exhibitions will be the same kinds of exhibitions, but it's also about underscoring certain aspects of art that touch on the hierarchy of race and class, gender and culture." Expo Line to Downtown's Historic Core. Look forward to better connectivity and public transportation bringing more Angelenos more often to Downtown. Celebrate the opening by bar-hopping across the city with LA Crawl's inaugural event. (Photo via IG @raymandang)

Andromeda in DTLA by Poet Broker

Is screaming and gesturing upwards at authorities riding expensive horses in the sky. âAre you guys heroes like Perseus who saved me from the sea monster in Greece?â

She motions to a stabbing victim, then a banger pushing drugs on a homeless vet. âHe lifted me on magic Pegasus and we became media stars of starry night!â

*âI guess you didnât read mythology?
How the hell are you serving women like me?â
âGo attack the king of Sacramento and stop falsifying the safety of DTLA streets.â*
